TO MEMBERS OF I. & I. ASSO.

EACH ONE IS ASKED TO CONTRIBUTE TWO AND A HALF DOLLARS.

The Association Thinks the Colonial Monument a Great Undertaking and Desires Its Members to Help in Its Erection.

Maj. Jos. M. Morehead furnishes the following paragraphs relative to the Colonial Monument:

The Regulators fought against the tyranical spirit of their age. England represented this in perhaps its mildest form, cruel and inhuman as her ideas were.

"Tryon was the creature of his age and surroundings. The King and ruling classes of England had at that time no just conception of the rights of mankind and little regard for even the lives of the common people. So late as the present century Sir Samuel Romily, the great lawyer, reformer and humanitarian, found these being driven daily in herds to the gallows—one of them at least, and a woman, for the trifling offense of stealing a pocket handkerchief." See life of James Hunter, General of the Regulators. Her criminal code was filled with capital offenses. Pugh and his comrades died but they taught Kings and tyrants the "might that slumbered in the peasants' arm" and purchased for humanity an infinite boon.

Ralph Gorrell, of Guilford, represented Guilford in the people's convention at New Bern in 1774—the first assembly by authority of the people that ever met in America. It met in open defiance of the British Governor and his proclamations. That was in its consequences and in the courage necessary to hold it as grand and as momentous an assemblage of human beings as ever met. Ralph Gorrell was also in the convention of 1776 that framed the State Constitution. He was in the service of the State throughout the Revolution. See Colonial Records of North Carolina, Vol. 10.

"On the day of execution" of James Pugh and his five fellow sufferers, "the whole army was drawn out under arms, except the sentinels. They formed in a hollow, oblong square; the artillery forming the front and rear faces and the main guard marched in the centre with the prisoners; the light horse covering the flanks to keep off the crowd. This order of march had been sketched out and given in general orders by the Governor (Tryon) himself, who stooped in this manner to point out the spot for the gallows." "The Governor's minute and personal attention to these particulars left a ridiculous idea of his character behind, bearing a strong resemblance to that of an undertaker of a funeral". See life of Caldwell, page 161.

MARMADUKE VICKORY A PATRIOT OF 1771.

The late revered and lamented Lyndon Swaim told Dr. Caruthers that "an ancestor of his, Marmaduke Vickory, was one of the men who was exhibited in chains through the streets of Salem, several of them being chained together." See Caruthers' life of Caldwell, page 160.

Samuel Jones, Joshua Teague, Samuel Wagoner, Simon Dun, Jr., Abraham Greeson, Benjamin Merrill, James Wilkerson, Edward Smith, John Bumpass, Joseph Boring, William Rankin, William Roberson, John Winkler, John Wilcox, Jacob Teckler, and Thomas Person, were excluded from pardon by Tryon's proclamation, June, 1771. See life of Caldwell by Caruthers, page 158.

Dr. Battle Medical Director.

Dr. T. J. T. Battle will be the medical director of the Security Life and Annunity Company, which is now preparing to open its insurance business in this city. It will be his duty to pass upon all applications for policies as they come up from the local medical examiners. A more careful or a more competent man for the place could not be found and the Security Life and Annuity is fortunate in having secured his services.

The policy blanks, stationery, etc., of the company is now being prepared and just as soon as it can be gotten ready the company will begin selling policies. They already have a number of applications even before they are ready to do business.

HER PRAYERS ANSWERED.

Murderers Caught, but Farmer Hunter's Wife May Not Live Till They Pay the Penalty.

Riverside, N. P., March 8.—"I have asked God to keep me alive until my husband's muderers were caught, and He has answered my prayer," said Mrs. Washington Hunter when she was told today of the arrest in New York on Thursday of two of the farmer's assassins and the certainty of getting another when his term in jail is over. She is ill in bed and does not look as if she would live much longer. Friends have tried to induce her to to leave the lonely farmhouse, which is surrounded by a great marsh, but she has told them all that she wishes to die in the place that she saw her husband's last days. She had already been told by State Detecetive Parker of the capture ofthe two murderers and their confession when she was seen by a reporter today.

"Everbody seems to feel sure that the right men have been caught at last," she said. "I am glad, oh so glad. It was hard to feel that such a good man could be cut down while defending me and the wicked men who did it escape. I hope their guilt will be proven, although I cannot help much in that. I saw one man but his hat was over his face and he held his arms up so I would not know him.

"The whole night of the murder seems like a dream now. My husband was cross at being disturbed. He left our bed to see what was the matter. Then I heard a scuffle and the next minute my husband stumbled into the room, all blood. I hardly knew him until he called for his gun. Just as I gave it to him the men began breaking down the door of our room. He could hardly stand up, but I held him under the arms so he could fire when the door gave away.

"I'm only surprised that I have lived until justice was done. Poor Wash, his hands were all cut to pieces. His blood is all over the carpet yet. The men that killed him showed no mercy, and they deserve none. I shall pray now to live through the trial."

Riverside is greatly stirred up over the arrests. The town has been full of amateur detectives since the County Comissioners offered $1,000 reward for the capture of the murders. Every one is now wondering who will get the money.

LEGALIZED PRIMARY.

GUILFORD AND OTHERS GET ONE

ABOUT TWENTY COUNTIES INCLUDED IN LEGISLAUIVE ACT.

Dr. McKee Succeeds Dr. Kirby—Aycock Begs the Legislature to Issue No Bonds. Appropriations Exceed Last Ones by One Hundred and Sixty Thousand Dollars.

Special Dispatch to The Telegram.

Raleigh, March 12—The report of the appropriation committee has been made and will be taken up tonight. The aproropriations exceed those of two years ago by one hundred and sixty thousand dollars. The committee cut off $170,000 of what was asked for.

The bill to discharge drunken solicitors was passed.

The free school library bill passed final reading.

A message was received from the Governor urging the Legislature not to issue bonds for any purpose and urging the sale of the $145,000 of bonds held by the State Board of Education if necessary to bring the schools up to four months term.

The Senate passed a legalized primary bill applying to Guilford and twenty other counties.

There was an interesting discussion of the House resolution authorizing the Senate to sit after the regular session as a court of impeachment. Justice argued for it, and Henderson against it. The latter declared that the Senate could not sit alone, or receive pay for over sixty days, that the personel of the Senate was the court of impeachment. The question is not yet disposed of.

Dr. James McKee of Raleigh, is elected superintendent of the insane asylum here to take the place of the late Dr. Kirby.

A Game Ticket Agent.

By Wire to The Telegram.

New York, March 12.—During an attempt at robbery this morning in a hold up of the station agent of the L road on Sixth avenue and Eighteenth street, robbers knocked down the agent Joseph Lawless, broke his nose and several teeth, also knocked down the ticket chopper. The employees fought gamely however, and Lawless managed to shut and lock the door of the ticket office. The robber seeing his plans had failed, made his escape before help could arrive.

Prisoners and Horses.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Bloemfontein, March 12.—Col. Pilcher's column has cleared the country of Boers between this country and the Orange River. His column has arrived here, bringing thirty three prisoners and three thousand horses.

SENDING PRISONERS TO INDIA.

Calcuta, March 12.—The government is preparing possibly for the arrival of five thousand Boer prisoners, who will be located in batches of one thousand.

General Harrison Failing Fast.

By Wire to The Telegram.

Indianapolis, March 12.—General Harrison is failing fast. Dr. Jamison was called at six o'clock. At ten there was a relapse of temperature to 102, with respiration weak.

Not the Man.

Commissioner Wolfe had a case of mistaken identity before him yesterday afternoon. It was the case of E. A. Shore, who was arrested on a bench warrant some time ago. He was wanted in Lynchburg for the re-use of revenue stamps. At the trial yesterday it was proven that Shore was not the man named in the warrant and he was released.

"THE TELEGRAM PRESS."

Mr. Geo. W. O'Neal is Now in the Telegram Job Department.

We have pleasure in announcing the fortunate acquisition to our Job Department of the services of Mr. Geo. W. O'Neal, who during the past two years has occupied a position with Mr. J. J. Stone of this city.

Mr. O'Neal has done much since coming to Greensboro to create a demand for better printing and many of our leading business houses are using stationery and other job work which bear eloquent testimony of his artistic ability as an original and tasteful compositor.

Not only in Virginia and the Carolinas is he recognized as an artist in his particular line, but the Inland Printer, the leading trade journal among printers in the United States, has frequently reproduced his samples and passed encomiums upon his work in its pages.

In this connection we would also remind our customers, that we are receiving new machinery and type for our job department and carrying a large stock of society and commercial stationery, which together with our new Linotype machine recently installed in the publishing department places us in a position to keep step with the rapid march of improvement in the printing businesss.

Hereafter the words "Telegram Press" stamped on a piece of work will be an absolute guarantee of its artistic merit.

SELECT RESIDENTIAL SECTION.

THE LOTS ON THE FISHER LAND WILL SOON BE SOLD.

No Lot Will be Sold Until the Plans of the House for it Has Been Approved--About Four Hundred Lots—Walk and Drive Around the Park Will be Completed by May 1st.

Mr. E. P. Wharton, the agent of Capt. B. J. Fisher, says that he will begin to sell lots on the land lying on either side of the northern limit of North Elm street, about April first. There will be 400 lots to sell. None will be sold until the plan for the building which the purchaser proposes to put on it has been submitted and approved by the the people selling them.

This plan will be pursued for the purpose of making the section a beautiful and desirable one. On certain streets only certain kinds of buildings will be allowed to be put up, and certain others in other sections. Thus, if a man desires to purchase such and such a lot, he must agree to put up a building coming up to the requirements made for that street. The lots will not be sold at auction, but privately, and all will be sold as fast as purchasers can be found. None will be reserved by the promoters.

THE PARK.

Mr. Wharton says that the drive and walkway around the park, which the city has accepted, will be completed by May first, and that the public may then begin to use it. The work of beautifying the park will be taken up by the city at its pleasure. There is no doubt that the city is to have a fine resort of it.

Directors' Meeting.

The meeting of the directors of the Guilford Battle Ground Company will be held in the office of Capt. Neil Ellington, in the Greensboro National Bank, at four o'clock, Friday, the 15th of March, 1901. It is earnestly hoped that all who can will be present. Mr. Jos. M. Morehead, vice-President of the Company, will perhaps have some interesting comunication to make to the board. Everyone is earnestly requested to attend.

President G. B. G. Co.

FOR UNIVERSITY ENDOWMENT.

MR. CHARLES L. VAN NOPPEN NOW WORKING TO RAISE IT.

He Has Been Employed by the Trustees to Raise $100,000 as an Endowment, and to Secure Enough Funds to Complete the Alumni Building.

Mr. Charles Van Noppen, of this city, has been employed by the Trustees of the University of North Carolina to undertake to raise an endowment fund of $100,000 for the University. The institution now has little endowment, and this effort is directed towards securing the amount named for investment, the income of it to be used for the general purposes of the University.

FOR ALUMNI BUILDING, TOO.

Besides working for an endowment fund Mr. Van Noppen has undertaken to raise the several thousand dollars needed for the completion of the Alumni building now in progress. He will depend upon the Alumni for this fund but will, of course, make a general canvass for the other. His efforts will not be confined to the State, but he will secure contributions wherever possible. Mr. Van Noppen has been engaged for three months and has already begun work.

JUDGE BOYD INVITED.

Has Been Asked to Deliver the Davidson College Commencement Address.

Judge Boyd has received an invitation from Davidson College requesting him to deliver the Annual Address before the Philanthropic Society of that institution at the forthcoming commencement. Owing to the duties of his official position, Judge Boyd has not been able to tell whether he can accept or not, but it is probable that he will deliver the address. He is an alumnus of the istitution.

Fine Brooms.

Mr. C. C. Johnson, who has recently bought stock in the Greensboro Broom Company and is now connected with that organization had a lot of brooms in The Telegram office yesterday afternoon, and fine ones they were too. The company is now turning out about 150 dozen brooms per week. Beside this company there are four others in or near this city which make brooms. These industries are not large ones but they are a kind which benefits a town. A town which has a large number of diversified industries never knows hard times.

Every retail merchant inthis vicinity ought to patronize home made goods and the people ought to ask for them.

Where His Tomb Should be.

Concord Standard.

We have not a feather's weight in the matter, but we'd be delighted to have General Greene's tomb placed on the Greensboro Battle Ground. It was there that he broke the lower part of the British spinal column and paralyzed the Southern arm of the British army. Though driven off the field, he took practically everything with him and left a seeming victor so badly whipped that he could not appreciate his triumph or dare the attempt to complete it.

District Agent.

Prof. D. W. Cochrane has been appointed District Agent of the State Life Insurance Company of Indiana, and will make his headquarters at Greensboro. He has recently been superintendent of Public Instruction in Montgomery county. He married in Guilford and will be partly at home here. His district will embrace this congressional district.

Mr. Scott Goes to Florida.

Mr. J. W. Scott, mention of whose expected departure was made by The Telegram last week left last night for Tallahasse, Florida, where he hopes to fully recover his health. He was accompanied by Mr. W. H. Watkins, of Ramseur, and Mr. O. R. Cox, of Cedar Falls.

CLEVELAND AND HILL ON DEMOCRACY.

They Write to the Crescent Democratic Club and Give Their Views. The Party Should Again Be Powerful as it Once Was.

Baltimore, March 11.—The Crescent Democratic Club, one of the leading political organizations of the city, celebrated its twenty ninth anniversary tonight, by listening to addresses on Democracy delivered by leading local speakers. The occassion was rendered more than ordinarily interesting by the receipt of letters from Grover Cleveland and David B. Hill.

Mr. Cleveland says: "All the political signs of the times indicate most impressively the necessity of increased activity and aggressiveness in the ranks of Democracy. There were days when Democratic principles advocated in Democratic fashion gave guarantee of Democratic supremeacy—or at least, strength and influence in our nation's counsels. Why should there not be a return of those days?

"The answer to this question is not found in less applicability than formerly of Democratic doctrine to present conditions. On the contrary,there never was a time when they were more needed to curve evils which afflict our body politic; and there was never a time when our countrymen would be more willing to accept Democracy as they once knew it, as a safeguard against existing and threatened evils. I am convinced, however, that if our party is to gain its old prestige and become a strong and vigorous organization, feared by its enemies and inspiring the active devotion of its rank and file, it must first of all things itself become truly, honestly and consistently Democratic."

HILL'S LETTER.

Ex-Senator Hill's letter is as follows: "You ask me in case of my inability to be present to express a few thoughts appropriate to the occasion, and I cheerfully comply with your request. A Democratic Club which has maintained its existence for twenty-nine years, stedfastly devoted to Jeffersonian ideas of government, is entled to the congratulations of all good citizens. There is need everywhere of such organizations unselfishly devoted to the public welfare, zealous for the triumph of our party, upon right principles and opposed to corruption where ever it may be found, whether inside or outside of party lines. In this time of dire defeat, when the shouts of the victorious hosts of plutocracy, commercialism and imperialism at their recent inagural festivities at the national capitol are still ringing in our ears, we should remember that the darkest hour is oftentimes just before the dawn of day.

"I am sure that a majority of the American electorate will not be satisfied with the continued rule of radicalism, extravagance and corruption. But we must not deceive ourselves. The people will not restore the Democratic party to power unless they are satisfied that they will give them better government. The people want a safe and conservative administration of public affairs. There must be no question of our intention to fearlessly maintain the national credit under any and all circumstance. We must not permit our opponents to place us in a false position as the enemies of public order. Labor and capital should be equally respected, but neither should be unnecessarily assailed. Opposition to dangerous corporation combinations should not be allowed to degenerate into indiscriminate attacks upon chartered rights. We should conciliate rather than antagonize the great business interests of the country and it could be easily accomplished without the surrender of a single essential party principle.

"We must realize the fact that a great political party should not be organized on narrow lines, but should be composed of all classes of good citizens, regardless of their pecuniary situations, occupations or other conditions who think substantially alike on important questions of governmental policy. Permit me to suggest to party friends that recriminations on account of present conditions are utterly useless. Let us instead look to the future with confidence, hope and courage.

"The Democratic party has survived a whole century of political vicissitudes, and if wise counsel shall hereafter prevail, as I firmly believe they will, the new century will soon witness a reunited and victorious party again in ascendency in the affairs of our beloved country."

UNKLE SI'S TURN.

He Writes on Thengs in General and Cards and Liquor in Particular—What's to Become of the Lord's Elec?

To the Editor of The Telegram:

Dear Sir—I aint givin over to writin much but I see so many kurius things about town now. The papers is so full uv storms and ship recks, and siety is giten so fur ahead of what hit use to be, that hit has got my head all unstrung. I have never seed as much drunkenness in all my life and the card parties a playin for staks is the fust thing you see in the papus. In my day you hardly seed a drunkard and the wimen folks never plaid cards. The papus says that the litle gals air larnin to play too and air havin thur card parties and a playin fur staks jist like the tothers is. I seed dosins uv sweet little boys and gals jine the church a few Sundays ago and I wonder if their parents is goin to larn thim or let them play cards. It pears to me that this would be a mity pity and I do hope the Good Lord will come twix them and sich and save our children from sich wickedness in hi placcs. I wish I could preach. I would love to tell the mothers the danger jist ahead of their loved ones. The card tabel at home is only a step to the card tabel in the tother end of the bar room and when our boys gits thar, we is surprised and will do mose any way to git ter blame off our shoulders onto someone els, but like Peter's ghost, hit will not down. I see in the papus where Greensboro has to pay more money to see a show than any two towns in the State. Well, this ain't surprisin to me. I hain't been about here much, but what little I sees this place is gittin to be mightly spry along bran-new lines to me.

I seed a man not long ago a standin on the very top of that thar round thing kivered with tin on top uv the new orditorium. He looked mity fulish looking to me and wus as much outer place thar as that thar high chist lookin thing on the rear end uv the bildin. I axed a man the tother day what they wanted to ruin the looks uv a nice house like that fur and he said it was jist the stile now and couldn't be hoped. Well says I, its a pity, fur if that thar box wernt up thar on the tother end it would make a pritty cote-house. I seed a nother site the tother day that made me wanter fite. It was indurin that thar cold blizard as they call hit. A leetle boy, not moern ten years ole wus a standin in a corner uv the strete. He was a shiverin and a shakin and peared to be most friz, sez I to him, what air you doin here in ther cole? He wus a likely chil and turnin his swet fase to me and the tears comin in his swet brown eyes; sez to me he wus a watin fur his pop. He was scase uv clothin and mity cole. Sez I, come inter ther store and git warm. He soon skampered outer my site and very soon I seed a man a cumin in a stagerin and mity drunk. Thur man said, wher is that boy? clear my skin, my face was in a horrible condition literally covered with red spots, pimples, blackheads, moth patches and freckles. And whenever the weather changed eczema, chap and salt rheum added to my misery. I suffered a thousand deaths, and when I sent for a trial of Mme. TUESDAY, MARCH 12.

A GOLD BRICK GAME.

The Progressive Farmer, which under its present management has secured credit for being a just and conservative paper, free from both the vulgar hypocricy and the senseless populism of its former self when in other hands, writes thus of the agreement which a part of the cotton manufactures of this State entered into and upon the basis of which agreement they asked that no labor law be enacted:

A majority of the State's factory owners having signed a sort of agreement to discourage child labor, it appears that this Legislatrue will adopt no remedial legislation. The agreement itself is a cowardly makeshift, the most important section being as follows:

"Second, That no child less than 12 years old shall work in a cotton mill during the term of an available public school. Provided: This shall not apply to children of widows or physically disabled parents. Provided further: That 10 years shall be the lowest limit at which children may be worked under any circumstances."

Under this agreement who is to say whether or not the parent is physically disabled? Who is to say to what extent the parent must be physically disabled before being allowed this privilege? And who will see that the agreement or any part of it is enforced?

And if the mill owners who signed the agreement expect to keep it, why do they oppose a law containing these provisions? It would not injure them, but would compel those who fail to sign to do just what the signers say they propose to do voluntarily.

Under this makeshift agreement, child slavery as heretofore practiced may flourish like the green bay tree.

In our opinion ,the factory men have worked an elegant gold brick scheme upon our inocent and gullible Solons.

It cannot be denied that the cotton mill men who sign this agreement have practically all the latitude they had before, while those who have not signed it will in no way be bound by it. It is therefore true that child slavery will be continued by those who desire to continue it as heretofore. This paper is not a "reformer," it doesn't pose as the champion of "the people," and it is not an agitator nor a Populist, and it seeks not to stir up strife; it believes in wealth, the accumulation and use thereof, and it believes that the future of our State is largely wrapped up in the success of cot on manufacturing. But it further believes that in this action the Legislature has made a blunder and set a bad precedent, and by it the State is put in the position of affording protection to those who need it.

Considering the fact that there was a general admission that some regulating law should and would be passed at this session, even among some of the best and wisest of mill men, up till the meeting in this city on January 16th, we cannot understand the action of the Legislature. We can explain its action only by imputing unworthy motives to some of the members, and this we do not care to do at this time.

A large part of the time of this session has been frittered away over the impeachment matter, which, so far as the real welfare and happiness of any persons except the Judges concerned, does not amount to a hill of beans, while a grave question which affects the State's citizenship is dismissed with a wave of the hand. The crop is sown to the wind.

How can the ungodly be blamed for talking of gold bricks and greasy pigs?

The farewell speech of Senator Morgan in the Senate last Thursday was an expression of a keen disappointment of a man who had set his heart and hands to a great task, and, then, in spite of all, failed. His admission that he now never expected to ive to see the canal constructed was pathetic. He has labored for so many years to get this great work done that his disappointment must be doubly great. The old man has for a long time been peering into the future and sees that the completion of an isthmian canal will be the key that will unlock untold opportunities to his country, and yet that country will not see it.

A correspondent writes in today's paper to suggest that there should be an effort made here to follow the example of Charlotte in establishing a nursery for the purpose of taking care of children of parents who work out during the day and have no means of protecting their little ones during their own absence. An awful experience awoke Charlotte's Christian people to the necessity of this institution. Will such an experience be necessary to awaken the people of this city? Certainly Christian charity could take no more valuable or practical form than this.

AFIRE, BUT WOULDN'T CALL

Mrs. Bender Thought of a Sick Tenant in the Next Flat.

New York Sun.

Mrs. Julia Bender of 347 East Thirty-sith street was a heroine last night without an audience. She was alone in her flat working hard and fast to finish a birhday cake as a surprise for her little girl, who is 12 years old today. As a finishing touch she stuck twelve candles in the cake frosting. She lighted one of the candles to see how it would look.

Then Mrs. Bender started to put the cake in front of the daughter's place at the table. It jolted a little and the candles fell against her dress. In an instant she was ablaze from head to foot, but she did not scream. She tore her clothing off and threw it into the sink. Then she fainted.

A tenant passing through the hall some time afterwards heard Mrs. Bender's groans and went to her assistance. When asked why she had not shouted for help Mrs. Bender said:

"I wanted to, but like a flash I thought of the sick woman across the hall. She is dying, and we have all been told we must be very still. I remembered all that when I was on fire. I was suffering so that I knew if I opened my mouth at all I would shriek so I grited my teeth and tried to put the fire out myself."

Mrs. Bender's injuries are probably mortal. An ambulance surgeon urged her to go to the hospital, but she wouldn't. She told him that it was her daughter's birthday.

The little girl had been sent out to visit a neighbor so that she wouldn't see the birthday cake till it was done. She came home later and it will be a sad birthday.

A CONTRACT TO SAVE SOULS.

Chicago Dispatch, 7th.

Rev. Richard A. Morley and Duke M. Farson, the revivalists, have signed an agreement, under which the latter is to convert 15 sinners within two weeks or forfeit 1,000 to the church fund. The terms of the pact provide as follows:

The church is to be turned over for two weeks, beginning March 11, lighted, heated and properly equipped.

There shall be no interference by the minister, or by the official church board.

There shall be no church entertainments, socials, concerts, bazaars, fairs or "other ungodly amusements" held by the church or its societies during this period, or $1,000 will be turned over to the church fund.

Three minister are to decide on what cases are proper conversions, by hearing testimonials of persons saved.

The scene of the contest will be in the Shefield Avenue Methodist church and three ministers will act as referees. The revival begins next Monday.

Mr. Farson has accused the ministers of trying to stampede his meetings. He said:

"The ministers come in, stay for a minute and then try to stampede the meetings and break them up by going out just when we are in the middle of the service. They are afraid to stay. In regard to the offer of $1,000, the money will be refunded if we don't make conversions."

FALCON ISLAND REAPPEARS.

The Little Island in the Pacific Which Disappeared Comes Again Into View.

Falcon island, which early last year was reported to have completely disappeared beneath the waves of the Pacific, is again showing its flat surface above the water. The life history of this speck of land has been unusual and interesting. A cable dispatch from Europe printed in April last year said that after a brief life of 14 years Falcon island had ceased to exist. It was thought that no trace of it would ever be seen again. But Mr. Vossion, the consul general of France in the Tonga group, announces that Commandant Ravenhill, of the cruiser Porpoise, has returned to those islands from a cruise in the Pacific with the news of the re-emergence of Falcon island. He says that the highest part of the island is now about 16 feet above sea level.

The island was formed by a great volcanic eruption at the bottom of the sea in 1885. It took the waves and storms of the ocean 14 years entirely to obliterate it. Mr. J. J. Lister, who visited the island a short time before it disappeared, said that it was rapidly being torn to pieces by the action of the waves. Unless a fresh volcanic outburst occurred he thought it would soon disappear. His prediction came true, and a steamer that visited the place about the beginning of last year reported that not a trace of it was to be found above the water level.

The island was built up in the neighborhood of the Tonga group about 35 miles from the Island of Tofoes. A submarine volcano had reared from the bottom of the ocean a mighty mass of ejecta, and on this foundation rested the outpourings which rose above the water. The island consisted of two distinct parts. One of them was a hill of gentle slope and wider base, whose height was 153½ feet. On one side the hill ended abruptly in a cliff, whose base was washed by the sea at high water. The other part of the island was a flat, extending away from the base of the hill in a northerly direction and only ten to twelve feet above the high tide level. The whole bit of land was just a bare, brown heap of ashes around which the great rollers broke and swept up the black shores in sheets of foam. The island was entirely destitute of any vegetation save for a half dozen seeding plants that had found lodgment there.

It will not be strange if the island is torn to pieces and again disappears from view within a very few years. Its reappearance now is doubtless due to another volcanic eruption. Volcanic islands seldom endure many years unless they are so large or so well protected against the sea that there is time for them to become covered with dense masses of vegetation before ocean storms have an opportunity to tear them to pieces.

In a Hurry.

"How d'ye do?" said the busy man. "Will you marry me?"

"O—er," she gasped. "This is so sudden; I must have time to think. I—"

"Say, don't keep me waiting too long or I won't have money enough left to buy the ring. I came in an auto-cab, and they charge by the minute, you know."—Philadelphia Press.

What the "Spectator," February 7th, 1901, of New York,

A Leading Insurance Publication and Authority on Life Insurance, Has to Say About the State Life Insurance Company of Indianapolis :

This company is a striking example of the fact that it is possible in these days of fierce competition in life insurance to build up a life insurance company possessed of financial strength without having to call upon stockholders for capital or ask assistance from the State. The State Life of Indianapolis is a mutual company organized in the latter part of 1894, and its sixth annual statement shows that it has already passed quite a number of companies, many of which were in existance twenty years ago. The following table of comparative growth is, in most respects, a record breaker, not a single company in its first six years having accumulated so much insurance in force, and but a very few having built up their assets so rapidly:

Year	Insurance in Force	Admitted Assets	Liabilities	Surplus.
1895	$3,584,500	$18,300	$15,868	$ 2,432
1896	7,859,500	58,770	45,483	13,287
1897	15,885,500	150,891	88,275	62,615
1898	17,049,000	256,645	152,037	107,608
1899	22,208,470	417,781	256,246	161,334
1900	28,339,877	671,380	409,504	261,775

It will be observed that there has been no break in the onward progress of the company, each year having been better than the preceeding. Last year was a particularly good year, the increase being: In insurance force, $6,131,407; in assets, $53,709, and in surplus. $100,241. From the first the company has maintained the full four per cent. reserve, although it was not required to until it re-incorporated under the law of Indiana, passed in 1899, which permitted the organization of old line companies in that State. Its reserve is deposited with the State under the provisions of the compulsory deposit law, and it is worth noting that its deposit now amounts to $500,000, which is over $90,000 more than the law actually requires.

The company is now working in twenty-nine States and Territories, the officials of eight of which have examined its affairs and given unqualified endorsement to its methods. Its officers have demonstrated their ability, and the State Life must be reckoned with as an important factor in the life insurance field.

Stock Companies with large capital, by using the interest on their capital to increase assets, have an insurmountable advantage over purely mutuals in their early years—except on this one point the State Life leads the world's records, on every desirable feature.

The Carthage Lynching.

The Telegram yesterday copied a special from Carthage to the Charlotte Observer, which, we are informed by parties who know the section and the people implicated, was in part an injustice. The article says that there was considerable doubt as tothe guilt of the man Martindale, who was hanged for the assault on Mrs. Brewer. There was no doubt, of it, they say, as the man was positively identified by the school teacher, Mrs. Brewer. The man had, also it is said, ruined his fourteen-year-old sister-in-law, from which her death had resulted. The men mentioned in yesterday's article as having been arrested are of the highest standing. Mr. Jones is the agent of the Durham and Charlotte railroad at Glendon and Dr. Street is of the best character and standing. Mrs. Brewer, who was assaulted, is the sister-in-law of Dr. Street's wife.

A rumor says that the arrested men have been released on a threat from the people of the section that if the prosecution were not stopped it would be looked after.

Photographed a Coffin.

Photographer Alderman did some work in his line yesterday for probably the least nervous or self-conscious sitter that ever entered his studio. It was a casket made by the Burlington Coffin Factory, and was one of the handsomest things in its line ever brought to the city. It was made for a Winston firm and as the manufacturers had but the one ready, and desired to have some photographs made for their salesmen, they brought it to Greensboro and engaged a regular "sit" for it with Mr. Alderman. The casket was designed for the use of a young lady, was of metal and entirely covered by white silk of a very fine quality.

This factory is turning out some fine work, and it will compare favorably with that produced by any other concern.

THE STATUE.

The marble waits, immaculate and rude;
Beside it stands the sculptor, lost in dreams.
With vague, chaotic forms, his vision teems.
Fair shapes pursue him, only to elude
And mock his eager fancy. Lines of grace
And heavenly beauty vanish, and, behold!
Out through the Parian luster, pure and cold,
Glares the wild horror of a devil's face.

The clay is ready for the modeling.
The marble waits; how beautiful, how pure,
That gleaming substance, and it shall endure
When dynasty and empire, throne and king
Have crumbled back to dust. Well may you pause,
Oh, sculptor artist! and, before that mute,
Unshapen surface, stand irresolute!
Awful, indeed, are art's unchanging laws.

The thing you fashion out of senseless clay,
Transformed to marble, shall outlive your fame;
And, when no more is known your race, or name
Men shall be moved by what you mold to-day.
We all are sculptors. By each act and thought,
We form the model. Time, the artisan,
Stands, with his chisel, fashioning the Man,
And stroke by stroke the masterpiece is wrought.

Angel or demon? Choose, and do not err!
For time but follows as you shape the mold,
And finishes in marble, stern and cold,
That statue of the soul, the character.
By wordless blessing, or by silent curse,
By act and motive—so do you define
The image which time copies line by line,
For the great gallery of the Universe.

THE PROFESSOR'S FOOTBALL STORY

By Howard C. Warren.

(From the New York Home Journal. Reprinted by Special Permission.)

THE day of the great football game was approaching, and all Kensington was wrought up to fever pitch. On the campus, at the eating clubs, and in the town the talk was of but one thing. "How are the men to-day?" "Is Travers' leg any better?" "Will he be able to play?" "Any signs of overtraining?" "Do you know what tricks they are working up?" And so on—generally, be it observed, in the form of questions—for at this season of the year the "inside" is very secretive, and outside gossip varies in detail almost with the number of speakers. In the absence of definite knowledge the suspense was terrific. A spirit of nervous unrest pervaded the university, and serious work was wellnigh impossible. Moreover, this spirit affected not only the student body, but many faculty circles as well. Instructors and younger professoars were under its sway, perhaps quite as much as any under-classmen.

At "The Cloister," where four of us, trainers of youth, live in contented bachelorhood, the electric tension of the atmosphere was obvious. Our conversation at meals and after was always about football; lectures were prepared without the usual care and thought; and I fear we all spent much time in reading the athletic columns of the daily papers which ought rightly to have been devoted to original research.

"I don't know why it is, fellows," said Mitford, one day at dinner; ""I don't care a rap about the smaller games; I don't take interest enough in them, even, to go down to the field when they are played in Kensington. But when it comes to the big ones, I get so nervous it breaks me all up; I can't work and can't sleep for thinking about them. The strain is fearful."

Prof. Mitford has a highly strung temperament, but we all felt that his particular words applied to our own cases, too. But this particular year Mitford had an added source of anxiety in connection with the game. Guild, the great half-back, whom everyone looked to to secure the needed touchdown, was conditioned in Mitford's subject, and that condition must be removed before he could play in the championship game. Mitford had sent him notice after notice, with no effect, and he knew the students might attempt to take advantage of the faculties sympathy with their cause, and get around the condition in some way. Now Mitford was a most conscientious man, and he had sworn by all that was holy that Guild must pass his examination regularly if he were to play in the game; and yet his heart was with the team, and he knew besides the unpopularity he must expect to incur, if anything he did should contribute to the defeat of Kensington in the great event of the year.

"What about Guild, Mit?" we asked him one day at table. Mit looked up with an expression of disgust, and what he said in reply is best represented by dashes and asterisks. After that the subject was dropped, as far as we were concerned. But certain things became plainer as the days passed by and the date of the game drew near. It was evident that the Pembroke team were improving wonderfully, and would give our men a tremendous fight. And it was also evident that our men relied on Guild, practically, to win the game for them. He was champion kicker, and runner, and tackler, all in one.

"If Guild is knocked out during the game we are lost," said some one at the Cloister once. We all agreed with the speaker in our inmost hearts, but as Mit was present we expressed no opinion, and the subject was deftly changed.

It was the second day before the game, and the team were to leave for Pembroke the next morning. Our anxiety could not longer be suppressed.

"Has Guild passed off that condition yet?" I ventured to ask Mit in the course of the day.

"Oh, go bury yourself," he answered, and my fears were confirmed. With carte blanche from the faculty as to time, Guild had put off his examination till the last minute, and a failure now would be irremediable. That evening we were to have a party of guests to dinner—Mit's friends, they were—and the talk could be of nothing but the game. About five o'clock the doorbell rang, and a party of students appeared. Mit was out after his guests, and it fell to me to receive the men.

'We have come to see about Mr. Guild's examination with Prof. Mitford," said the spokesman. They were all anxious and nervous, but I thought I detected a certain note of defiance in the speaker's voice. I consulted with my chums, and at last we found the examination paper which Mit had prepared for the occasion. The honor system is in vogue at Kensington, so they were allowed to take the paper to Guild's room.

While we were at dinner the bell rang at least a dozen times. The maid returned each time with the announcement: "Some students to see Mr. Mitford." She had told them, of course, that Mr. Mitford was at dinner, and they had left. It was a different party each time, come to inquire whether Guild had passed. And all this time Guild was in his room, presumably scribbling away for dear life. During the evening the bell-ringing kept up, and Mitford each time refused to see the callers. Our guests, who were out-of-town people, and, of course, deeply interested in the game, had been told of the circumstances, and plainly showed signs of curiosity.

"Why, you simply must pass him, Mr. Mitford," said the bewitching Mrs. Alton, the chaperon of the party, in her most enticing voice. "Just suppose we should lose the game on that account!"

"Madam," said Mitford, putting on a dignity which is unusual with him at home, whatever he be in the classroom —"Madam, if he gets 50 per cent. I shall pass him;" and the fair visitor saw at once that she had tried to carry her tyranny beyond its proper domain.

At length our guests departed, and Mit went with them to escort them to the inn. Soon after they had gone, a student came around with Guild's paper. He wanted to remain and hear the result, but we told him that Prof. Mitford was out and might not be back till late. He left in a state of obvious perturbation. As for us, words cannot describe our anxiety. We talked and talked, and walked restlessly about the room and waited; but Mitford still failed to appear. At last we went upstairs. Though I seldom read in bed, that night I thought I might profit by a few hours, which would not in any case be claimed by Morpheus. But what I read made no impression on me whatever. My thoughts were on the game, and Guild, and Mitford.

Finally the outer door rattled, and Mitford's step was heard in the hall below.

"Mit," shouted Jim, "the paper's on the desk in your study!"

"You mustn't come up till you've read it," chimed in George from his room.

"Right!" I added, involuntarily, and kicked myself immediately afterward for doing so.

A loud "hmm" was his only answer, as he stalked into his study.

There was silence above and below for about half an hour. And I know now that Mit spent most of that time with his eyes closed and his face in his hands, in agony. He had read the paper, and given liberal credit for all that was in it, and the figures summed up to a total of exactly 45. Should he waive his scruples and let the man through? If he did not, what would be his future in Kensington? He saw the sudden end of his popularity—the game lost and his fault! The conflict was long and terrible.

"No, I must do it, whatever the consequences," he muttered at last, and turned to write the fatal number on the paper. The room seemed suddenly dark and cold. As he turned the pages, suddenly his eye fell on a sheet of paper on the floor which he had overlooked. It was the answer to another question—and it was right!

He jumped up like a flash. Our ears had been straining to catch some sound below. He rushed into the hall and shouted triumphantly:

"He's passed; he's passed!"

"Yea-a," was the yell of three voices from above, and the agony was over.

Two days later Guild made a 40-yard run through the entire Pembroke team for a touch-down, and kicked the goal himself. And that run gave Kensington the championship.

A Pretty Japanese Story.

One of the prettiest of all the stories relating to mirrors is that which comes from the far east. In this a man brings as a gift to his wife a mirror of silvered bronze. Then she, having seen nothing of the kind before, asks in the innocence of her heart whose was the pretty face smiling back at her. And when, laughing, he tells her it is none other than her own, she wonders still more, but is ashamed to ask further questions. But when at last her time comes to die she calls her little daughter and gives her the treasure she has long kept hidden away as a sacred thing, telling her: "After I am dead you must look in this mirror morning and evening, and you will see me. Do not grieve." So when the mother is dead the girl, who much resembles her, looks in the mirror day by day, thinking she there talks face to face with the dead woman, and never guessing it is but her own shadow she sees. And it is added, by the old Japanese narrator, that when the girl's father learned the meaning of this strange conduct of hers, "he thinking it to be a very piteous thing, his eyes grew dark with tears."—Troy Times.

The claim of other cough medicines to be as good as Chamberlain's are effectually set at rest in the following testimonial of Mr. C. D. Glass, an employe of Bartlett & Dennis Co., Gardiner, Me. He says: 'I had kept adding to a cold and cough in the winter of 1897, trying every cough medicine I heard of without permanent help, until one day I was in the store of Mr. Houlehan and he advised me to try Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and offered to pay back my money if I was not cured. My lungs and bronchial tubes were very sore at this time, but I was completely cured by this remedy, and have since always turned to it when I got a cold, and soon find relief. I also recommend it to my friends and am glad to say it is the best of all cough medicines." For sale by C. E. Holton.

A MONSTER DEVIL FISH

Destroying its victim, is a type of constipation. The power of this murderous malady is felt on organs and nerves and muscles and brain. There is no health till it's overcome. AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

A FRIGHTFUL BLUNDER.

Cures old sores, fever sores, ulcers, boils, felons, corns, all skin eruptions. Best pile cure on earth. Only 25 cents a box. Cure guaranteed. Sold by C. E. Holton.

Owing to the rapid growth of the "City of Flowers" I find it necessary to increase capacity for coming summer work. Will shortly add a new 50 horse power engine and 60 horse boiler, washing machine and mangle. These new machines added to present equipment will put the "Gate City" on an equal with any laundry in the south. Would call special attention to the new collar and cuff machine recently purchased which will give either gloss or domestic finish, by simply changing gear from left to right and vice versa. A NIGHT OF TERROR.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she could not live till morning" writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night. "All thought that she must soon die from pneumonia, but she begged for Dr. Kings New Discovery, saying that it had more than once saved her life, and had cured her of consumption. After three doses she slept easily all night, and its further use completely cured her." This marvelous medicine is guaranteed to cure all throat, chest and lung diseases. Only 50c. and $1.00 Trial bottle free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

The stomach controls the situation. Those who are hearty and strong are those who can eat and digest plenty of food. COLD STEEL OR DEATH.

"There is but one small chance to save your life and that is through an operation," was the awful prospect set before Mrs. I. B. Hunt, of Lime Ridge, Wis., by her doctor after vainly trying to cure her of a frightful case of stomach trouble and yellow jauntice. He didn't count on the marvellous power of Electric Bitters to cure stomach and liver troubles, but she heard of it, took seven bottles, was wholly cured, avoided surgeon's knife, now weighs more and feels better than ever. It's positively guaranteed to cure stomach, liver and kidney troubles and never disappoints. Price 50c at C. E. Holton's drug store.

For the weakness and prostration following grippe there is nothing so prompt and effective as One Minute Cough Cure. This preparation is highly endorsed as an unfailing remedy for all throat and lung troubles and its early use prevents consumption. It was made to cure quickly.

Two of Greensboro's popular young people think they are very quiet about it but it is known all the same. They will be married in the Baptist church on the tenth of next month. We would tell the hour but that would be too bad. And if there is any truth in the old saying that a man is unable to attend to his business just before he is married, Uncle Sam's mail is in a bad way.

And they do say too, that a certain popular young druggist, who recently moved from Greensboro to a neighboring town, will stop off on the tenth of April also, and that his prospective bride is a young lady that has many friends here, even if she does live in another town.

FAT ENGINEERS BARRED.

Only Slim Men May Run Locomotives on the Baltimore & Ohio Railway.

Firemen on the Baltimore & Ohio railroad have suddenly become greatly interested in looking up diets for people who wish to reduce their flesh.

It's all on account of a recent decision of the officials of the Baltimore & Ohio that hereafter no man weighing more than 180 pounds shall be eligible to promotion as an engineer on the Royal Blue line. By some peculiar provision of nature it has come to be a fact that almost all firemen are fat, and as all firemen hope some day to be engineers, their present distress of mind may be readily imagined.

The whole trouble rests with the crowded cab quarters of the latest type of engine. On its fast lines the Baltimore & Ohio uses an immense type of locomotive, with driving wheels 78 inches in diameter. This seems to necessitate extending the boiler back through the cab to the tender. That leaves a space of only 14 inches between the boiler and the wall of the cab. Into this narrow space the engineer has to squeeze himself and sit through his hours of vigil while flying along the track at a 60 or 75-mile-an-hour clip.

Naturally, no man who is wider than 14 inches at his widest part can occupy the engineer's seat, and hence this latest order. The cabs cannot be widened because they would strike trains on the opposite track.

Efforts are being made in Beaufort, S. C., to get an appropriation for rehabilitating and preserving the "old fort" which stands on the spot where Jean Ribault landed 300 years ago. It was built by the Spaniards after they had driven out the French.

It was not until 1827 that the two wings of the national capitol building were completed and not until 1867 that the dome was finished. The total expenditures up to that time reached $13,000,000. Since that date two wings have been added, with a marble terrace, which have brought the entire cost of the building to $19,000,000, which is a small sum compared with that expended upon several of the state capitols, which do not approach it in magnitude, dignity or beauty.

In the crypt under the dome of the capitol at Washington is a subterranean chamber, intended as a tomb for Washington, but his family objected to the removal of the remains from Mount Vernon. A "keeper of the crypt" was carried on the pay rolls at a salary of $600, whose sole business was to keep a light burning in the vault. This practice continued until 1863, when the appropriation was discontinued, and the light, which had burned constantly for 50 years, was allowed to go out.

The object of this committee is to arrange plans for the raising during the next five years, of three hundred thousand dollars in North Carolina, this amount to be devoted to the cause of education in the Presbyterian Schools and Colleges in the State.

MORE ROOM.

Southern Import and Commission Company to Come on Elm Street.

The Southern Import and Commission Company, which has occupied offices in the Southern Loan and Trust Company's building, has grown so rapidly as to need more room than can be supplied there, hence they will move down on Elm street. They have rented the room just prepared by Mr. R. G. Glenn, just south of Ward's drug store, and will move into it April first. This will give them a handsome front office, with ample room in the rear of it and the drug store for their wholesale sample rooms and cutting department.

DAY NURSERIES.

The Work Being Done in Charlotte is Commended to Greensboro.

To the Editor of The Telegram.

Attention is directed to the following clipping from the Presbyterian Standard:

"A little child left by its mother in charge of another child, was burned to death, not long ago at one of the mills near Charlotte. The poor mother, who worked in the mill, cried out in her agony, 'What else could I do? I had to work to keep my child from starving.' Her question touched the hearts of some of the Christian people of the community, and at the instance of Dr. Barron, of the Baptist church, plans have been set on foot to make provision for the many little ones who are in like case, dependent for bread upon the labor of their mothers in the mill and thus deprived of a mother's care during working hours. The ladies of all the churches are uniting in the work of establishing day nurseries where the litle ones will be cared for by competent persons while their mothers will feel that they are safe and in good hands."

There can be no doubt that a similar movement to that thus undertaken by the good ladies of Charlotte, is needed in Greensboro, and it is believed to be only necessary to point to this need and the noble example referred to, in order to induce our noble band of self-sacrficing ladies to inaugurate and carry into successful operation a work which appeals so strongly to the motherly instinct.
